Companion ads and frequency capping

With the ability to synchronize video and rich media ads, ADTECH provides a valuable selling advantage to your advertising customers. Synched banners can be used to extend and reinforce the message of your video ads. ADTECH's platform also supports frequency capping. This feature allows you to prevent user fatigue by controlling the maximum number of times that a user sees a single video ad.

Full control over your video campaigns

Manage and administer complex video campaigns without any extra investment of time and effort. With ADTECH, you can easily create and monitor your video ads using the same intuitive booking process and reporting you experience with display ads.

With ADTECH you are completely equipped for the video advertising market

Online video advertising is not a "one size fits all" business. There is no standard solution that can be used by universally to achieve optimal results. This is why ADTECH's video platform was created to be customizable and simple to integrate and operate. We allow you to define what works best for your business needs.
